Huntington County Chamber Names Clancy Volunteer of the Year

MARKLE, Ind. — Markle Health & Rehabilitation Director of Marketing and Admissions Belinda Clancy was named Volunteer of the Year by the Huntington County Chamber of Commerce because of the work she has done for the chamber and throughout Huntington County.

Clancy, 51, has volunteered with the Chamber's Heritage Days, Ale After Hours and as a Chamber of Commerce Ambassador, encouraging business development in Huntington County.

She also volunteers in community organizations, including Special Olympics, Habitat for Humanity and Markle Church of Christ, where she leads a children's ministry.

The award was given this week during the chamber's annual dinner at the Police Athletic League in Markle. "I've always had a desire for helping people," said Clancy. "Whenever something is going on that will improve Huntington County, I'm in."

A resident of Huntington, Clancy grew up in Parke County, Indiana. She later moved to Clay County where she opened the county's first non-profit daycare in a church. In addition to Markle Health and Rehabilitation, Clancy sales real estate.

She and her husband Jim have four sons and live in Huntington.
