Aster Place of American Senior Communities in Lafayette Receives Perfect Survey from Indiana Dept. of Health

Lafayette, IN, (Sept. 30, 2026) – Aster Place, a member of American Senior Communities (ASC), has received a deficiency-free annual state inspection from the Indiana State Department of Health. Aster Place serves Lafayette area residents with Garden Homes, Independent Living Senior Apartments, Assisted Living Apartments, Memory Care Apartments, Respite Care, and the New Energy Wellness program for residents and non-residents.

A deficiency-free rating is the highest score a senior community can receive, with only a small percentage of senior care communities achieving this rating each year. Communities are assessed on their staff to resident ratio, cleanliness of the community, 100% compliance with state regulations, record keeping, safety measures, dietary practices, overall quality of care, customer satisfaction and more. Surveys are conducted by inspectors through unannounced visits. In addition to their inspection metrics, they conduct interviews with residents, family members, and staff.

American Senior Communities CEO, Steve Van Camp, shared, “The staff at Aster Place have shown that through close collaboration and constant adherence to our core values and standards of excellence, they are deserving of this recognition. We are proud of their accomplishment and congratulate every team member for providing excellent attention and care to Aster Place residents across their entire line of services and care levels.”

Aster Place Executive Director, Cari Branshaw adds, “A deficiency-free survey is an incredible achievement, and I am so proud of the entire Aster Place team. Their compassion, teamwork, and commitment to our residents are evident in everything they do. This recognition is a direct reflection of the outstanding people who make Aster Place a wonderful community.” Christine Kelley, VP of Senior Living stated, “Achieving a deficiency-free annual survey is a tremendous accomplishment and a reflection of the leadership, as well as the dedication, teamwork, and commitment of the entire Aster Place team. Every day, our team members come together with a shared focus on providing exceptional care and creating a meaningful experience for our residents.
